

Looking West

On Sunday, March 27, Capilano College salutes West Coast manufacturers and designers in a fashion experience. This extravaganza, presented in the Park Ballroom of the Four Seasons Hotel, will be produced and created by the Retail management students and faculty.

The fashion show will include interesting displays, and a chance for exciting door prizes. Attend either the brunch show at 11 a.m. or enjoy lunch and a show at 2 p.m.

The Sunday extravaganza highlights dawn to dusk fashions for every member of your family, ranging from Pappas Furs sophisticated fur creations to Hutch Apparel's funky sportswear.

After the show, browse the attractive displays, also featuring West Coast designers and companies. Liberty Belle handbags and belts, Bloms down quilts, Leisure Lids active sports accessories and many more examples of local fashion talent will be on view in the lobby.

Looking West, a creative fashion experience is produced by Capilano College students as part of the curriculum of the Retail Management program at the college. Many graduates of the two year program are currently involved on the local fashion scene — in designing and manufacturing, in sales and merchandising.

Proceeds from the show go towards the Student Scholarship fund. Ticket price of $15.00 includes an elegant meal. For tickets and more information, phone 987-1911 (local 425). Seating is limited.
