

STUDENTS AND FACULTY joined forces at Capilano College yesterday morning to protest increases in tuition and cutbacks in government funding. Faculty Association president Karl Kobylansky (right) told the

NEWS government cutbacks would mean a reduction of 100 sessions at the college and therefore fewer teachers. Students and faculty boycotted morning classes before holding the 11 a.m. rally. (Terry Peters photo)