

TEACHERS CLOBBER TEACHERS

Capilano College and North Van Teachers took to the ice last Tuesday for the first annual N.H.L. (Northshore Hockey Laughter) in an effort to raise money for the Rick Hansen Fund. About one-hundred supporters, mostly students and family members of the players, cheered the teachers on as they entertained with picture perfect passing and nifty stick-handling. Spectacular goal-tending by Windsor's Doug Irwin and Cap's Pierre Coupey kept the game close. The highlights of this non-contact old-timer game were several solid bodychecks. Wayne Matthews of Carson Graham and Cap's Reimar Hauschildt met at centre ice levelling both of the green shirted players. Not to be outdone, two players on the gold team repeated this play to the delight of the roaring fans.

The winning goal for the teachers was scored by Ted '111' Bentley as he stick-handled his way through both his own and the oppositions defense putting a hard low drive behind a startled goalie. The Rick Hansen Fund was a winner along with all the teachers as donations by the fans and the players exceeded $230.00. With a matching government grant the Hansen Fund will receive almost $500. Thanks go to FOSTER'S LAGER who donated the ice time, to IAN WILLIAMS, a Cap student, who did a superb job video-taping the game, and to Cap's Edna Sakata (for pictures) and Jill Hanney (fund raising).

Anyone interested in seeing this entertaining hockey may rent the video from the Natural Sciences office at Cap (proceeds to Hansen fund of course). When asked if they would do it again, the teachers groaned they would be happy to sacrifice their bruised and stiff bodies anytime for such a worthy cause. Greg Lee, a Cap Dean, was speechless when asked about his solid check at centre - apparently Greg lost his voice in his collision with a team-mate.
